GOVERNMENT SHOULD SET AN EXAMPLE

President Roosevelt's tart defense of occupational deferments for a vaguely specified percentage of the government's civilian employees will not stop critics in either house of congress, or outside congress.

Government stands obligated to set a flawless example for all employers in handling deferments. Until the critics are satisfied that this is being done, they will continue to make themselves heard.

Government's position in a matter of this kind is complicated, moreover, by a popular feeling that some of the work it might hold to be of such importance that deferments are in order for individuals performing it is not, in fact, objectively important at all. This feeling is particularly strong in cases where there is no direct bearing on the national war effort.

The question of the government's policy on deferments should be kept open until the critics are satisfied, and no doubt it will be. Meanwhile, further thought will be given to the latest declaration by its best authorized spokesman that the Roosevelt administration should stand above reproach. This is what Wendell Willkie was talking about recently when he described the tendency of an administration that remains in power a long time toward implicit faith in its own way of doing things and arbitrary rejection of all suggestions to the contrary.

DISORGANIZED LABOR

Despite what appeared to be plain instructions from their organization chiefs, more than 40,000 members of United Mine Workers remained away from work on Tuesday. They did this in the face of a shortage of coal threatening to become one of the nation's gravest problems in its second full winter of war.

Their action is described as a "wildcat strike," though it appears that the miners, themselves, may have felt they were following their union's established policy of refusing to work without a contract. Whatever other factors may have entered into the stoppage—and it cannot be explained satisfactorily without making allowances for a number of other things—the net effect is to raise a doubt about the ability of United Mine Workers as an organization to accept responsibility for its own members.

This is not the first wildcat strike, and it is not specifically a reflection on any one labor organization, but rather on the practicability of collective bargaining without perfect discipline. When men refuse to work at their jobs contrary to the expressed wishes of their own labor union and their government, they are disorganized, not organized, labor.

THE SYMBOLIC HITLER

Closely connected with encirclement of Germany and the disappearing threat of Nazi hegemony on an expanding scale is the disappearance of the symbolic Hitler—the ranting conqueror, supreme, dictator and flower of the super-race. Hitler is on the skids, symbolically, and sooner rather than later may join Mussolini among the castoffs. Evidence multiplies, in fact, that if Germany's enemies must have a personality to despise so they can fight Germany better their man now is Himmler.

Himmler's influence inside Germany is expanding. He has command of anti-aircraft defenses, fighter planes over Germany and even some regular troops, according to reports recently appearing in Swiss newspapers. As minister of the interior, he is ideally situated to increase his prestige as the strong man in Germany's last stand, and as chief of the secret police he can be certain of having his own way without interference even from the Hitler and Goerings.

It has been a long time since the last objective reporters were inside Germany, and it wouldn't be surprising to learn that Hitler, like Mussolini, will prove to have been washed up long before he finally is discarded as of no further use to German ambition.

USE THE RIGHT NAME

The idea advanced by Rep. Clare Booth Luce to postpone induction of fathers a little longer by replacing deferred 1-A's with 4-F's after the latter had been inducted into something called an army and navy maintenance corps would sound just as good if it were called by its right name—compulsory service for National manpower.

If the United States intends to draft men to work in industry alongside civilians, doing the same work for military pay rates (Mrs. Luce suggests that the difference be turned over to a government fund for post-war relief) that is compulsory labor. Since the addition to manpower available for military service probably wouldn't be sufficient to meet selective service quotas, it might become merely the starting point for extending the same principle into other manpower minorities.

The manpower shortage, unless relieved by a turn in the war or by the combination of plans of all kinds now being executed to that end with varying degrees of success, will bring the issue of compulsory service in the United States to a climax eventually. It is important that when the climax comes the issue should be presented squarely in recognizable and manageable form, not as something already predetermined by a policy put into effect previously without popular comprehension of the implications.

Wherever I went in the reich, people gave the impression of being hyper-nervous and worn out. Strangely enough, they became less gloomy in the shelters. Probably the common danger gave people a feeling of fellowship—Swedish businessman after visit to Germany.

Let it never be said that we stood over the body of a dying soldier and had that soldier say to us that he was dying on some foreign battlefield because you and I had not given him the tools with which to fight.—CIO President Philip Murray.

THE STARS SAY:

For Friday, October 29

ACCORDING to the lunar transits this day holds splendid promise for promotion, preferment, favors, and for the accomplishment of securing future good fortune as well as honorable position. It should be a propitious time for dealing with superiors and those in power for such marks of appreciation. However it is recommended that the rules and regulations, the routine codes, not be lost sight of, lest there be some miscarriage of aspirations. There may be trivial delays or disappointments, but shun petty annoyance or rash words.

Those whose birthday it is have a year in which there may be a happy fulfillment of plans and purposes for placing the future affairs and income, as well as established and secure position in the mind and hearts of superiors, those in position and elders. Promotion, preferment and favors may be forthcoming, but adhere to the codes, lest there be some miscarriage of cherished ideas. In small annoyance shun sharp words or acts prompted by the emotional impulses.

A child born on this day should have many excellent traits and talents attracting the support and substantial returns from employers, superiors or elders. It should shine in their esteem, if it refrains from emotional urges.

American boys don't make good prisoners. Our servicemen aren't prepared for the life of a war prisoner. Germans, on the other hand, receive intensive training in the German army, learning what they can demand as prisoners under the Geneva convention.—Tracy Strong, Y. M. C. A. official.

Inflation is the deadly enemy of private enterprise and of a free economy. Deflation always follows in its train. Deflation brings unemployment and hunger, bankruptcy and foreclosure.—Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson.

Colleges and universities recognize that they themselves cannot go unreconstructed in a world undergoing a general reconstruction.—President Felix Morley of Haverford college.

Leaving the navy feels like jumping overboard and not knowing how deep the water is.—Vice Adm. Adolphus Andrews on retirement.

All the women who ever had jobs, or considered themselves working women and wanted jobs, have gone to work. What's left are the people—men and women—who don't want to work.—Mrs. Rose Schneiderman, New York state secretary of labor.

We haven't really begun to make any sacrifices in the United States as yet. In contrast to what I've seen today our little annoyances and sacrifices at home seem small indeed.—Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau Jr., from Italy.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Treatment for Overweight

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THERE HAVE been several classical forms of treatment of overweight, which can roughly be divided into two classes—one based on the theory that overweight is due to a disturbance of the internal glands and that giving one or other remedy by mouth corrects the difficulty, and the other the simple and plain idea that a person gains weight because he eats too much.

The first of these methods depends on the administration of thyroid extract or pituitary extract and works all right in the proper cases which I am bound to say seem to me very few.

The principle trouble in treating the second class of cases—those who are overweight because they eat too much—is that right at the outset they say they hardly eat a thing. According to them they have the appetite of birds, and very small birds at that, and they compare their performances at the table with the thin member of the family who, they say, eats enough to keep an elephant going.

Dr. Newburgh's Method
If, however, you want to get the real lowdown on this group do what my friend Dr. Newburgh at Ann Arbor does with them. He locks one in a room and sees to it that only so much food is brought to him a day. About the end of the twelfth hour a howl goes up that sounds as if the Michigan Central were passing under a culvert. If Dr. Newburgh can keep one in that room long enough he reduces him from 300 to 150 pounds simply by giving him just what a bird would eat.

I was interested in a recent report that the class of overweight people who were easiest to reduce were girls in their teens and recently married women. Later they didn't care. After forty papa goes to the bowling alley and mamma stays home and hits the candy box. Well, the latest form of treatment for overweight is to give them something to take their appetite away. The substance is called amphetamine sulphate. This is taken an hour before meals and then you don't eat hardly any meals.

Stops Stomach Motion
What the stuff does apparently is to stop all motion, or nearly all motion, in the stomach. It also has a psychic effect in that you do not feel like eating. The description of a perfectly beautiful steak from the butchers, which has been procured by saving ration coupons until it hurts, doesn't give the subject of the experiment the slightest twitch. Not a drop of saliva moistens her lips.

The system seems to work out according to the investigators. The average weight loss is reported at two pounds a week.

What the final outcome of the treatment will be I naturally don't know. It is better than being locked in a room for six months and having nothing but some lettuce and tea brought to you, but anything that you take by mouth that makes a blueberry pie look like a mud puddle cake hasn't much future in my opinion.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
M. A. S.: Is it harmful for a tuberculosis patient to smoke?
Answer: I do not believe so, in moderation.

Washington Round-up

News and Views, Briefly On What's Going On In Capital

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—There may be some new coupons to tear off—or reasonable substitutes thereof.

Senator George (D-Ga.) chairman of the senate finance committee says he wouldn't be surprised if Congress should whip up a sales tax plan to raise wartime revenues and dole out exemptions to taxpayers in the form of certificates. The taxpayer would use up his exemption coupons, which would be allotted according to his marital status—and thereafter pay a 10 per cent levy on his purchases.

The house ways and means committee began a general discussion of the sales tax today and with some members endorsing it and the administration dead set against it, it was anybody's guess what the outcome would be. But several members were reported to have told the Treasury it must accept a sales levy or a new tax bill with very little revenue in it.

DIVIDING COAL
The nation's coal pile is getting smaller and smaller but today government and labor circles were hopeful that the strike-ridden soft coal industry would be able to get back on its feet again without a general shutdown. An estimated 48,000 miners are still idle but United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis has called a meeting of the UMW policy committee to figure out a solution to the miners' discontent and the wildcat strikes. And it was expected that the War Labor board—which set this morning as a back-to-work deadline—would certify any continuing disputes to the White House, presumably a prelude to some form of government seizure of the mines.

THE SENATE TALKS
There was growing administration concern today that lengthy senate debate on a post-war foreign policy declaration might cause an unfavorable impression abroad. The text of the resolution has been cabled to State Secretary Hull at the Moscow conferences and the sponsor of the resolution—Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the senate foreign relations committee—expressed belief that it had been discussed in Moscow, at least informally.

DESIGN FOR DRAFTING
Senate and house conferees on the pending father draft legislation arranged to meet today to mesh these two proposals:
(1) That Selective Service call single men and childless married men on a nationwide rather than local basis before drafting any more pre-war fathers, and (2) that granting of occupation deferments be tightened up to steer more non-fathers into the armed forces. Meanwhile War Manpower Commissioner Paul McNutt has been called to testify before a senate committee on charges that war plants are "wasting and hoarding manpower."

SCHOOL FOR SERVICEMEN
Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.) wants to know where the money is coming from to carry out President Roosevelt's proposal that the government help demobilized service men and women complete their education. Chairman Thomas (D-Utah), of the senate education committee announced however, that he is "starting with enthusiasm" on a bill to put the plan through.

TRUCKING TROUBLES
There's too much trucking for too few trucks and the Office of Defense Transportation is worried about it. The War Production board has approved a big increase in civilian truck production for 1944 but ODT officials estimate that it will be six months before any relief is felt, unless strong steps are taken. One of these steps, says the agency, is further voluntary or enforced curtailment of domestic service.

Farm accidents in the U. S. take about 5,400 lives a year.

Radio Programs

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The boys of Uncle Sam stationed in camps all over the world are to get a chance to entertain the folks back home in a regular weekly series via short wave link. The only requirement is that they have talent which will register over the radio, musically or other wise.

The program is to be listed as "G I Variety" and be carried by NBC on Saturday afternoons at 5:45 (EST) for 15 minutes beginning Nov. 6.

The first broadcast is to originate from London, to be followed in turn by programs from Reykjavik, Iceland, Fairbanks, Alaska, and other points.

LEAVES FROM A WAR CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK

by Hal Boyle

ALOISERS, Oct. 28.—Old man hard times is knocking harder on the door in Algiers after almost a year of Allied military victory. Each successive Allied military victory has brought only more belt tightening for the civilians.

Each month some new shortage develops. For example, a year ago there seemed to be plenty of glasses in Algiers. Now they cannot be bought in any store. But when we begin to run short the little French widow who cooks for The Associated Press correspondents was equal to the emergency. She sent out some wine bottles and had the tops cut off. The bottoms now make excellent tumblers.

But Madame Steib has less luck in obtaining shoes for her small son, Gerard.

"He goes through a pair every three months, and it is almost impossible now to obtain leather," she said.

Everywhere the civilians complain of the difficulty in finding new shoes.

Believe Yanks Wealthy
They complain of the high prices, too, and the wealthy farmers are bitter because they are having trouble hiring native labor. The Arabs, they say, have been lured away by the prospect of higher wages to work for the American and British military authorities.

The curious delusion persists among Algerian shopkeepers that the pockets of all Americans are lined with 14 karat gold. Madame Steib, who is a sharp shopper and enjoys her daily battles at the market, said that when she upbraided one butcher for trying to overcharge her for a piece of meat she was buying for herself and her two children he replied:

"Pouff, yes. The price is too high. But you can afford it. You work for the Americans."

Clothing prices have gone up unbelievably. There is such a shortage of cloth that it is almost impossible to buy a suit. It's so scarce even the black market operators can't find any to sell. A Syrian dealer in antiques told me that a good suit now costs $240—ten times the pre-war price.

Offered $180 For Suit
"One of your merchant seamen who was short of money offered to sell me one of his suits. I bought it and took it to the tailor to be altered. Even though it was second hand the tailor offered me $180 for it. He wanted it for himself. I just laughed at him."

Clothes and food are strictly rationed. Eggs cost 14 to 16 cents each in the city—when you can get them. On the black market, by driving 80 miles in the country, you can pick them up for 7 cents each—if you know the right Arab.

To get anything you have to know somebody. It is living back in the bootleg era.

Among some of the common items it is difficult to find in the stores are tooth brushes, tooth powder, pencils, writing paper, typewriter ribbons, pens, needles, fountain pens and medical supplies.

Food scarcities in the shops are no worry to heavy eaters whose wallets are as fat as their stomachs. For $2.50 to $15 you can dine sumptuously in any number of black market restaurants on steak, fresh lobster or any other dish.

By an odd quirk, the price of American cigarettes is lower on the black market than in the stores. This is perhaps because many soldiers who do not smoke trade away their cigarette rations. A package costs 36 cents to French civilians over the counter, but they can buy them for 30 cents on the black market.

Table Tennis Balls For Servicemen Are Sought

Families here of servicemen in Iceland are looking for ping-pong balls—a rare item these days since they are no longer manufactured. The men stationed at the lonely northern outpost have asked relatives to send them, but the article is not obtainable in stores. The only way the men's request can be granted will be through someone who may have old table tennis sets stored away.

Anyone who can help the families fill the request is asked to notify Frank Davidson, 5509.

Wesley Davidson and Louis Martineau are among Salem men stationed in Iceland.

Lights Go On Again, Mark Victory Over Enemy Subs

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Lights will be turned up again on Nov. 1 along the nation's coasts as the Army and Navy mark down a victory over the prowling enemy submarine.

In a joint announcement the War and Navy departments, the War Production board and the Office of Civilian Defense urged that the dim-out be succeeded by a "brown-out"—a semi-dimming to conserve critical resources used in generating electric power. The announcement said that the successful campaign against enemy subs had made the dim-out unnecessary.

The War Today
By DeWitt MacKenzie

far the collapse of morale might their front, there's no telling how spread. Still, while that possibility must be considered, we should remember that thus far the morale of the German armies has been top hole—apparently better than the civilian morale at home. Their retreat this summer to the Dnieper was a military masterpiece, and we have no right to jump to the conclusion that they won't be able to duplicate this feat now.

The depth of their retreat naturally will depend on pressure from the Russians. We believe that the German command plans ultimately to retire to the defenses of Hitler's European fortress, close to the frontiers of the Reich. However, their tactics now are to play for time—to give their luck a chance to turn.
Therefore one would expect them to hope to make a stand on the so-called Odessa line, thus protecting the gateway to the Balkans. The delaying campaign which the Germans are waging with so much success in Italy fits in with this picture. This Nazi stand on the Italian peninsula is calculated to protect the Balkans and so the dangerously placed Hitlerite right wing in Russia.

MANN ACT CHARGES
DENIED IN COURT

CLEVELAND, Oct. 28. — Six Youngtown men pleaded innocent before Federal Judge Emerich B. Freed today to charges of conspiring to violate the Mann act in connection with the transportation of women from Ohio and other cities for immoral purposes.

Judge Freed set trial for Nov. 10 and in refusing to reduce bonds of $15,000 each commented that "the crime charged is one of the most reprehensible things the court can conceive."

The six, indicted this month by the federal grand jury on information supplied by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, include: George Elkowitz, 42; Joseph Blument, 30; Philip Poghen, 42; William Clark, 32; Sam Conti, 38; and Edward Dailey, 32.

Indicted with them was Baxter Lee Harrell, 33, of Oklahoma, who still is sought. Lee V. Boardman, FBI agent here, said Harrell had been accused of forgery, counterfeiting and safe-cracking, and came to Ohio six years ago.

Held as material witnesses in the white slave case are 15 women, including the wives of all the Youngtown defendants except Elkowitz.

Boardman asserted the accused had supplied women for houses of prostitution in Cleveland, Chicago, Miami, Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego, New York, Buffalo, Detroit, Seattle, Knoxville, Tenn., and Farrell, Pa.

Slayer of Twins Found
Sane; Must Stand Trial

CLEVELAND, Oct. 28.—Adjudged sane by a jury, Henry Hagert, youthful confessed slayer of two 13-year-old twin boys, must stand trial for first degree murder.

Eight women and four men returned the verdict after a three-day sanity hearing. Hagert's attorney, Edward A. Lury, said the boy would plead innocent by reason of insanity.

The twins, Charles and James Collins, were killed last August in a wooded section of a Cleveland suburb.

Washouts In Navy
Aviator Training Program Reduced

By HOWARD W. BALKESLEE
Associated Press Service Editor

CINCINNATI, Oct. 28.—One hundred secret questions, put to candidates for fighter pilot training in the Navy, have reduced the washouts by 20 to 30 per cent.

Washouts are men who fail after weeks or months of training, a serious loss in time and a great loss in money. These men are physically and mentally perfect, and predicting those who will fail has been one of the most difficult jobs in aviation.

The psychological test which does this was reported to the aero medical association of the United States today by Lieut. Comdr. John W. Jenkins of Washington. The test is biographical, the questions all being about the men's own lives, ambitions and emotions.

Queries Are Secret

All the questions were culled from hundreds of beliefs and hunches.

held by officers, doctors, fliers and aviation experts about what it took to make a good fighter pilot. All these beliefs were measured by psychologists by laying them alongside the actual performances of pilots.

Commander Jenkins said the significant 100 questions remaining locked up in Washington, and can not be made public. But he gave samples of some beliefs which the study has proved erroneous.

These were that a man can not be a good fighting flier if he is a stamp collector, or left-handed, or an only child, or given to sexual indulgence. Also eliminated were beliefs that a Baptist makes a better flier than a Methodist or that a swimmer is better than a non-swimmer.

Among 8,600 fliers tested on the 100 questions, those grading A succeeded 90 per cent; while of those grading E .59 per cent failed.

Furthermore, the E men took so much longer to learn that in the extra time spent on them, 100 A men could have been fully trained.

The Army Air Forces have cut down a long-standing 40 per cent washout rate among fighter pilot trainees by similar methods.

Policeman's Slayer Flees State Prison

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—With the point of a 12-inch knife at the throat of his 6-year-old daughter, Anthony Cella was forced to drive Victor Andreoli, 27-year-old escaped convict sentenced to life for murder, around Philadelphia last night while Andreoli tore and scattered his prison clothes. Cella told police.

Then, Cella said, Andreoli leaped from the car and shouted, "Tell the cops I'll never be taken alive. The first cop that lays a hand on me dies."

Andreoli, one of two men who pleaded guilty to the murder of a state policeman in Luzerne county, Pa., in 1937, escaped from Eastern State penitentiary here yesterday.

Cella said Andreoli appeared at his home, forced Mrs. Cella to get him some clothing by holding the knife at her daughter's throat, and then, still holding the child, ordered Cella to take him on the automobile ride. Cella and Andreoli were former business associates.

WALLACE SPEECH

said, "she has increased her own food production by 60 per cent but even so still has to import one-third of her food. The four billion pounds of food we are sending to England yearly is doing far more to shorten the war than would that same food kept here in the United States."

The vice president said the United States could make "one of her finest contributions to the war effort and the world-wide triumph of democracy during the first two years of peace" by cooperating with Canada, Latin America, Australia and Africa in producing food to the limit.

Urges Post-War Planning

Wallace added "we do not propose to feed a single person anywhere in the world who is not willing to produce to the extent of his ability." The vice president asserted "one of the easiest and most certain ways of increasing farm production in the United States is through giving the small farmers a chance. These farmers are only partly employed. To do a real job of farming they need capital and leadership. The Farm Security administration has proved that when these small farmers have both capital and leadership they step up production amazingly."

Wallace maintained "there can be jobs for everyone" when victory comes, "but we must plan to produce 40 per cent more peace time goods than we ever did before. We will have at least three million new workers, even after wives return to their homes and students to their schools. Each worker today turns out 25 per cent more than in 1933. Unless we use this increased productivity to produce much more than we did before the war, 10 or 12 million workers will be without jobs."

"I will take much more ingenuity to defeat lieutenant general unemployment than it will to overthrow Hitler," he commented.

SEE GREAT AIR WAR FOR JAP-HELD ISLES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The next few months are almost certain to bring some of the greatest battles of the war between ship-borne and land-based aircraft over Japanese-held islands in the central Pacific.

And naval authorities here are confident that carrier-borne planes in sufficient numbers can completely nullify the enemy's land-based defenses, as demonstrated, they say, in task force raids on Marcus and Wake islands.

The battles appear likely to be joined when powerful forces of United States aircraft carriers strike at Japanese outer defenses to seize advance bases from which to launch new attacks even nearer the Japanese mainland.

57,000 MINERS IDLE

an accumulation resulting from the coal situation, and some blast furnaces remained shut down.

A progressive decline in coal production was seen as virtually certain, but government and labor circles here were optimistic that the new crisis would pass without an extended, general shutdown of the mines.

The unstable situation is expected to prevail at least until the policy committee meeting of the United Mine Workers on Monday. UMW President John L. Lewis telegraphed a summons to the committee today without making any new, open move to send an estimated 57,000 idle miners back to work.

The War Labor board is expected to certify the wildcat strikes to President Roosevelt late today or tomorrow, presumably as a prelude to government seizure of the affected workings. The board set a decline of this morning for strikers to return to work.

Secretary Ickes has told friends he would not willingly accept the custodianship of the mines again—as he did last summer—without broader authority to deal with the miners. An alternative possibility is that the President may turn the whole job of coal production over to the Army.

The reaction of the miners themselves to the War Labor board's proposal for settling the coal wage problem was not immediately certain.

UMW circles were extremely critical of the WLB's suggested solution of the coal wage situation. The WLB said it could approve $1.12 a day wage increase. The miners asked $1.50.

ALLIES PUSH ON

Torrella Del Sanno, lies nine miles northwest of Larino, caught German and Canadian and British on the left of the Eighth army still short of the main mountain defense line toward which the Germans are slowly withdrawing.

Cross at One Point

As far as is indicated in official reports the Eighth army has driven a cross the Trigno only in the immediate area of the river's mouth. With the Mediterranean virtually cleared of enemy shipping and the German air force apparently too weak and too far away to attempt further raids on North African ports, the Northwest African coastal air force has transferred its activity largely to the Adriatic.

The Middle East air force, again active over the Aegean, caught German bombers disembartering from a big Junkers-52 air transport at Cos, an indication the enemy was reinforcing that Dodecanese air base, and again bombed Antimachia airfield there. The harbor at Porto Matheana on Stampalia in the Dodecanese and the barracks on Gavdos island south of Crete also were bombed.

ATTORNEY HELD IN INFANT SON'S DEATH

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Oct. 28.—John F. Noxon, Jr., 46-year-old socially prominent corporation lawyer, was held for the January sitting of the grand jury today on a murder charge in the electrocution a month ago of his six-months old mentally deficient son, Lawrence.

Medical Examiner Albert C. England, in his autopsy report, said the baby died by violence, acute heart failure induced by the passage of electric current through the chest from forearm to forearm.

Dr. England quoted Noxon as saying that the child died in the library of the Noxon home while the father left him on the floor near a radio he had been repairing.

Boosts Youth Center

EAST LIVERPOOL, Oct. 28.—The Rotary club today contributed $200 toward maintenance of the Hi-Ten center, with a "night club atmosphere in proper environment," which now is being established in the YMCA here. The project, intended for boys and girls of "teen-ages," is sponsored by the Ministerial association, Junior Chamber of Commerce and YMCA.

LIBERATED AIRMEN

but I managed to walk to a hospital only two blocks away.

"For four days I couldn't even remember my name, and the German lieutenant tried to help me. He even showed me his own identification papers as a means of trying to restore my memory."

L. Robert Taylor, whose address Spring did not know, also escaped from the Fortress and is believed safe in Germany.

Spring credited a British army surgeon whose name he knew only as Henderson with saving his life by a complicated skull operation at a German hospital camp at Obermassfeld, using only simple instruments.

He described Henderson as one of the six foremost brain specialists in the world and added the Germans respected him so much they took even civilian cases to him.

Tells Of Capture

One other returned American prisoner at this hospital camp was Pvt. Robert M. Scott of Greensboro, N. C., a paratrooper.

Scott was the 18th man to bail out of his plane on 11 p. m., the night before the troops landed on the Sicilian beaches. He jumped from only 300 feet. He had joined other paratroopers and was wounded the next day after covering his comrades while they crossed a road.

His leg was riddled by machine gun fire when he himself tried to dive across.

"Go ahead. Get the hell out of here. I'm finished," Scott called to his fellows after he fell and when he could no longer fire because of pain from his leg wounds.

He said a German officer who once lived in New York came up to him and asked reproachfully, "What are you doing, fighting the Germans? Aren't you sorry you didn't stay at home?"

Another prisoner in the British hospital, Sgt. Milton Williams of Omaha, Neb., and St. Louis, Mo., added to his previous story with a description of how the prisoners in one German camp made up teams to get the most out of their diet. It was necessary to supplement the camp food by Red Cross packages in order to keep alive, he said.

"We'd get a man with a bad stomach, a blind man with a missing leg, and a man with good legs who could do our running around with us," said the waistgunner on a Fortress shot down over Bremen.

"Each of us would share in the work and get a special part of the diet. We'd save bits from our supper and later in the evening we'd add Red Cross food and heat it over the steam pipes for our best meal of the day."

"Some of the people at home who are complaining should be in a spot like this where you really learn unselfishness and what it means to respect human rights."

Ammonia once was distilled from the horns and bones of animals and was known as "spirit of hartshorn."

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backaches quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatism, pain, leg pain, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with aching and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Dean's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Dean's Pills.

HOUSE HUNTING TIP—
JUST BE ORIGINAL
EVERETT, Wash.—Mrs. M. B. Palmer, faced with a housing shortage, inserted the following advertisement in the Everett Daily Herald:
"I'm not a millionaire or a defense worker. I'm just a wife of a sailor who is overseas. Have two girls and a baby. I can't put my children in a sack or hang them up on a nail. Nor can I bring back my husband so he can work in a defense plant. But I do have to have a place to live in. Don't all rush at once. I've only waited five months now."
The first publication got results.

WELL, BIG BOY, YOU ASKED FOR IT
BOULDER, Colo.—This big, bad stickup man really got what he asked for. He stepped into E. P. Baker's filling station and announced it was a holdup. "Give me everything you've got!" he demanded. So Baker hopped him over the head with a large piece of heavy ore with all his might. The fellow staggered out and a companion dragged him into a car and fled.

NOT A W.O.L., SIR
JUST PLAIN LOST
JOHNSON CITY, Tenn.—Put this soldier down as lost, sir, he wasn't 'A.W.O.L.'

He burst into police headquarters here and begged the sergeant to call his camp and "tell them I'm not a deserter. I just got lost."
The soldier told the sergeant he was from Massachusetts and stationed at Camp Tyson. He said he "got lucky" in a "game of chance." That's all he remembered and didn't have the slightest idea how he got to Johnson City, he said.

SHERIFF SOLVES CASE OF TIED TRUCKER
LA JUNTA, Colo.—Sheriff John Armstrong found a safe near the highway.

Investigation disclosed a truck driver casually had tossed the safe from a load he was hauling for a customer.

He said he didn't believe the customer wanted the safe and as it was a heavy cargo he decided to discard it.

NAVY TAKES OVER LINER NORMANDIE

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The Navy has taken over the U. S. S. Lafayette, formerly the French liner Normandie, from salvaging contractors and work in refitting and remodeling the vessel as a troopship is expected to begin shortly.
Restoration of the 83,000-ton ship which capsized after a fire Feb. 9, 1942, will be marked by ceremonies at its North river pier.
The salvaging job, begun in March, 1942, has cost $4,500,000 to date. Rear Admiral E. L. Cochrane, chief of the bureau of ships, has said that it would take another nine months to remodel the ship and that the total cost would be $20,000,000.

German E-Boats Attack English Channel Ships

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Fast German E-boats, copying the methods employed by Nazi submarines, apparently have adopted wolf pack tactics in a stepped-up campaign against British shipping in the English channel.

(This change in tactics—the E-boats formerly hunted singly or in groups of two and three—was viewed here as an attempt by the Germans to drum up some good news for the home front at low cost.

The campaign parallels the resumption of light hit-and-run air raids on the London area, which are being built up by the German press as smashing, large-scale assaults.

Church membership in the U. S. has increased 3 million members since 1941.

Cut Leads to Fracture

YOUNGSTOWN—Pvt. David Katzurin had a cut finger to blame for his being hospitalized at Shenango Personnel replacement depot with a fractured skull. Private Katzurin cut his finger on the door of an automobile while hitch-hiking from Sharon, Pa., to Youngstown. He went to a drugstore to have the cut treated. When the clerk started to apply iodine Katzurin fainted, striking his head on the floor.

Bertelli Will Throw Own Farewell Party Saturday Afternoon

SPORT CHATTER

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 — Stirring the embers in baseball's hot stove, Danny Llewellyn, who hasn't buried his memories of the World Series in his winter job as teacher of general science, physical education and health and basketball coach at Ringtown, Pa. High school writes: "You must admit we can play better ball. Put us in the same league as the Yankees and they could never catch us." . . . that might be true, but it also might be that the Yankees wouldn't catch 'em because they'd be going in a different direction. . . . Jimmy Johnston, who seldom has a good word for boxing commissioners, takes time out to regret the resignation of Tris Speaker as chairman of the Cleveland commission. "He was one of the few commissioners who ever applied the rules with common sense," says J. J. J. "He knew his job was to regulate boxing and that's all he tried to do."

CAN YOU BEAT 'EM

Compliments of high school grid feats that will be hard to beat: Mike "Tiny Tim" Roussos, New Castle, Pa., tackle, kicked a 25-yard point-after-touchdown on a muddy field during a recent game. His team drew a 15-yard penalty on the first attempt and that's how far the ball actually traveled. In Richmond, Va., 15-year-old Osborne "Sonny" Ashworth of St. Christopher's High, threw just three passes against Benedictine and all three clicked for touchdowns.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE

When Bill Paschal joined the Trinity school coaching staff last week, he became the tenth of the grid Giants to take a part-time job as a coach. . . . Ossie Solem, Syracuse's fearless coach, must believe that Archbold stadium is a Cornell Jinx. Three days before the Cornell-Colgate clash there, Ossie publicly predicted that the Big Red wouldn't have any more success against Colgate than it had against Syracuse on the same field.

WHY ANSWER THIS ONE?

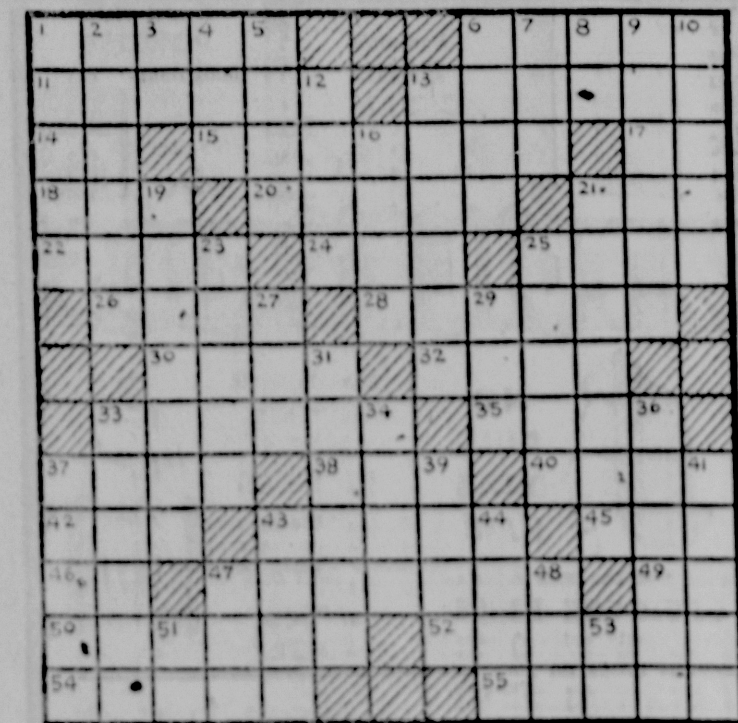

Deaf Charles "Pie" Dufour, former New Orleans item scribe, asks: "What about 'T-Totals' as a nickname for Frank Leahy's Notre Dame lads? They've been totaling the points with the T, haven't they?"

Gable Arrives In Capital

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Captain Clark Gable, former motion picture star who has been on duty with the Eighth Air Force in Great Britain, has arrived in Washington. . . . It was understood that Gable returned to edit and complete for Army use training films on aerial gunnery.

The favorite food of the robin is the mulberry.

ANGOTT TEACHES WHITE A LESSON

Sammy Retains His Lightweight Crown by Drubbing Negro

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—Sammy Angott still is the lightweight champion, and the very last fellow to dispute it today would be Luther (Sluggo) White, Baltimore Negro, who got the boxing lesson of his life last night in 15 rounds.

It was one of the most interesting and unusual fights ever held here. As the boys started the fourth round a generator failure plunged the Hollywood baseball park into darkness. It was an hour and seven minutes before electricians repaired the trouble.

The crowd sat good-naturedly through the interim without any marked display of displeasure. The boxers retired to their dressing rooms after waiting in their corners for the first half hour, blankets piled over their bathrobes to shut out the cold night air.

When the fourth round got under way again, 10 seconds had been pared from it. That was the elapsed time from the instant they rushed from their corners and indulged in one exchange before the arcs went out.

Angott was complete master of the situation. He went out in the first round to steal the play from the fast-punching White. Tireless smashing hit a marked effect on White over a long period of time, and in the 14th and 15th he seemed on the verge of being knocked out.

Midway in the 15th Sammy smashed home a terrific right to the jaw that sent White out of the ring, but the Negro bounded back and continued to take terrific punishment as he wobbled around the ring.

Angott weighed 134, White 135.

T' Formation Fails To Prove Anything To Coach of Army

By SID FEDER

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 28.—The "T" is just sweet enough for Army's taste this fall, but that doesn't prove to Coach Fred Black that there's nothing like it—either as a beverage or a football offense. In fact, the lean, likeable pilot of the military academy's all-winning footballers said today he doesn't think it's "even a better offense" than the regulation one he's always used before.

Black, using the much-talked about "T" this season for the first time, has the army outfit riding along on a five-game winning streak and no worse than even-up against powerful Penn Saturday and Notre Dame next week. So far, the military model "T" has racked up 211 points against in these five games.

"But that doesn't prove anything," Black explained today. "There's a lot to be said for the 'T' and we're having a lot of fun with it. But it's no better than the single wing in my mind. We've just found that it fits our material up here and we can do more with it in the short time we have with our men each day. Primarily, we don't have to work so long and so hard with the linemen under the 'T' and since we don't have too much time with the boys, it has been better for us."

Deer Hunting Permits Averaging 25 Per Day

COLUMBUS, Oct. 28.—State Conservation Commissioner Don Waters reported today applications for deer hunting permits for the Dec. 6-18 season were coming in at the rate of only 25 a day, far below anticipated demand. There is no deadline on applications, but we expected a greater earlier demand for permits, Waters said. Only slightly more than 500 applications have been received. Waters said permits could be obtained from the commission's district offices or from conservation headquarters in Columbus. During the season, the district office at Waverly will continue to issue permits.

Place Bivins In 1-A

CLEVELAND, Oct. 28.—Jimmy Bivins, rated by the National Boxing association as a logical contender for the heavyweight championship held by Joe Louis, has been reclassified 1-A in the draft, his co-manager and trainer Wilfred (Whiz Bang) Carter, said today. Carter reported Bivins had been working in a local war plant for about eight months, "but the draft board apparently didn't have that information when it reclassified him 1-A last week."

The Crimson Thread by LILIAN LAUFERTY

CHAPTER TWENTY

Josephine stiffened. "Why should I need an alibi? I hardly knew Mr. Everard. I've only been here a month and I'm a little too old to notice a man young enough to be my son. Anyway I'm Miss Glenn's housekeeper and cook. If I don't get busy in the kitchen, you folks won't have dinner much before midnight."

"It's O. K. by me," Roney said and got up with heavy gallantry to open the screen door for Josephine. "I wouldn't mind sitting down to dinner myself right now. But Chief Calvin's probably looking for me—"

"Let's go," Jack snapped. "What's all the rush? Why don't you stay to dinner?" I asked. Suddenly it seemed very important to detain them.

Jack's smile was oblique. "A few minutes ago I told you that we were suspicious of everyone who was on the loose at six-fifteen last night. We've got to question them all; Commodore Knowlton, your esteemed aunt— even Greg. Everybody's suspect."

"Even you, Mr. Drummond?" Aunt Carrie inquired.

He didn't like it. "Come on, Roney," he said curtly. "Greg Mason is over at the Everard house. There are a few things I want to go into with him."

"Do you think Greg Mason killed Pete?" Aunt Carrie asked.

There was no answer.

"Are you going to arrest him?" my grand aunt persisted.

"The police will do a lot of checking before they try to pin this crime on anyone in particular," Jack Drummond said. There was relief in his voice too.

"I'll run over to the Everards' with you," I volunteered as Jack got up to leave our terrace. "Nancy must have forgotten that I offered to take the children—"

"She wants the twins to stay with her," Jack said.

"She'd better send them to us," Aunt Carrie suggested. "Or they'll find out a lot of things there's no need for them to know. The Commodore wanted them at Rockledge, but I told him Hilda had spoken first."

"The youngsters are staying where they are," Jack was curt about it. "And now before I go, let me warn you both. Don't do any more plain or fancy fabricating. Tell Peggy that goes for her, too. By the way, where is Peggy?"

"New York," I said.

"Expect her for dinner?"

"Yes."

"She'll probably come on the 6:32 or the 6:57."

I nodded.

"And it's close to six now. Let's go, Roney."

Jack let Roney get a few steps ahead. Then he said: "Stick a little closer to fact, Hilda. It'll be better if your story checks. And don't talk out of turn. Wait till you're asked. Then be mighty careful what you say."

With that, Jack Drummond went striding off the terrace. I didn't like the set of his shoulders. They had stopped sagging.

Aunt Carrie said: "I wonder if he really thinks Greg did it."

"He may want to think so because, up to now, he's been afraid it's Nancy," I answered. "He knows something he's not telling. . . . I wonder if Peggy does, too."

Aunt Carrie sighed. "What can Peggy know? You're forever writing stories, Hilda. Can't you keep 'em on paper?" Then she added: "I wish Nancy Mason had married Jack Drummond instead of Pete Everard. I wonder if she hasn't been wishing that herself for quite a while."

Half an hour after Jack left our house, Chief Calvin and Sergeant O'Toole appeared.

"We want to check on a few things we didn't go into with you this morning, Miss Glenn," the chief announced suavely. "Could we be alone?"

Aunt Carrie rose with great dignity. "It's time I dressed for dinner, which would be pleasant if Wing were here to serve it."

"Miss Drury's Toya says Wing didn't stir off the place after he got to Beach Cottage at three," the chief told her pleasantly. If Miss Drury corroborates it, Wing will be here to serve your dinner tomorrow night."

Aunt Carrie managed to be queenly in spite of her little roly-poly figure as she left the room.

"Miss Glenn," the chief said grimly. "Was there much quarreling at a dinner held in this house, Saturday night?"

"There was some bickering," I couldn't help smiling at my superb understatement. "You know how edgy some people get when they drink too much. Some of my guests were (should I say?) uninhibited."

"Precisely. And Mr. Mason and Mr. Everard were particularly uninhibited, weren't they?"

"Perhaps. I don't recall."

"Read her your notes, O'Toole," Chief Calvin said.

The Sergeant read: "Then Mr. Pete call Mr. Gregg bad name. Mean he stingy devil and say he pay check golf Sunday, so Mr. Greg won't have put hand pocket. Mr. Greg say Mr. Pete drunk. Mr. Pete say maybe he tight but that better than Mr. Greg's way being tight. Miss Peggy she sit next Mr. Pete. She try stop him. He slap her. Him and Mr. Greg fight all through dinner—"

"That's enough," O'Toole," the chief directed. "Well, Miss Glenn?"

"That sounds like my boy Wing," I said. "You've got him perfectly."

"Did Wing report his Mr. Pete and Mr. Greg as perfectly?" the chief asked.

"I was the hostess. I didn't concentrate on any special bit of conversation. I had to think of all my guests."

"But if there had been a particularly ugly scene you'd have noted it."

"I daresay. Oh yes, I'm quite sure I should have. And since I didn't, doesn't that indicate—"

"Read her the other bit. Where they were alone in the dining room," the chief said.

O'Toole found the place in his notes and read: "I'd been serving coffee out on the terrace and was on my way back through the living room to get the liquers when I heard loud voices from the dining room. I knew it was Mr. Mason and Mr. Everard as they weren't on the terrace with the rest of the guests. They were arguing and then I heard Mr. Mason shout, 'I've had all I'm going to take. All and more.' Mr. Everard kind of sneered at him, but his voice didn't carry well. I met Miss Hilda at the door of the dining room. She'd been out in the kitchen with Wing, who seemed to think there was poison in one of the glasses he'd emptied. I was speaking to Miss Glenn and didn't quite hear the rest of it. But it sounded like: 'That's final. You've been warned. Don't say I didn't give you a chance.'"

"Who said that?" the Chief demanded.

"I'm not even sure anyone said it."

"Mrs. Powers is sure though."

"Then let Mrs. Powers quote her authority."

"She says it was Mr. Mason."

"Do you set much store by the testimony of eavesdroppers?" I asked coldly.

Chief Calvin leaned forward from the chair. "Miss Glenn, are you trying to keep the police of Haven-hurst from apprehending a murderer?"

"No, of course not."

"Then I suggest you be a bit more co-operative. And I also suggest that employees who overhear conversation in the course of serving a dinner are not actually eavesdroppers."

"Perhaps not. Only now when there's so much at stake . . . when a wrong interpretation, even a wrong emphasis, may point to an innocent person . . . I think it's too bad to lay so much stress on what untrained observers presume to remember."

The chief smiled. "That's an excellent point, Miss Glenn. As a matter of fact I lay more stress on what a trained observer like you insists on forgetting."

He let that soak into my befuddled brain cells. Then he said without stress: "Here's another memory test. Do you recall a dinner at the Everards' ten days ago?"

"Why," yes. It was a week ago Saturday."

"That's a nice, definite statement."

Try to make a few more of 'em, Miss Glenn. Now, Sergeant O'Toole, will you please tell us what Wing had to say in regard to that occasion."

The sergeant turned the leaves of his notebook and read: "Missy Aunt Flo say Mr. Pete need money so can write play. Say Commodore shall give. Commodore very mad. Call Mr. Pete no good. Say he fix Mr. Pete."

I hesitated. I didn't quite know why.

"Is that what the Commodore said?" Chief Calvin demanded.

"That's the gist of it."

"Ah, so your memory is reviving," my police quizzier purred. "Then you're not denying that Commodore Knowlton threatened Pete Everard's life?"

"I couldn't deny it."

But it is one thing to suspect and fear your enemy and another to swear his life away. I had hated Commodore Knowlton for years. Because of that ancient grudge, because I was so eager for a scapegoat behind whom to hide Greg, I was almost afraid to answer that question.

The chief leaned forward and fixed his opaque brown eyes on me with an expression I couldn't fathom.

"There was a dog killed here some weeks ago, wasn't there, Miss Glenn?"

"Yes. But who told you that?"

"A witness volunteered the information. The witness also said you believed that Commodore Knowlton had struck the beast over the head."

"Yes," I said, and wondered if State's Attorney Drummond were the witness of whose anonymity the chief was so careful.

"Do you believe Commodore Knowlton killed that dog?"

"What's the difference what I believe?"

"That's a good enough answer, Miss Glenn, have you ever heard the theory that a killer leaves his mark on his work?"

"What do you mean, Chief Calvin?"

Sergeant O'Toole answered for him. "The chief means that a strangler is always after strangling; a spalpeen that's quick with the knife keeps right on using it; and a gunman don't fancy any weapon but his gat."

"Carbon monoxide gas killed Mr. Everard, didn't it?" I asked blandly.

"He was killed by a blow over his left temple—a blow delivered with great force and presumably by a waffle iron." Then the chief said abruptly: "What were Commodore Knowlton's exact words when he said he'd fix Pete?"

"He said Mrs. Knowlton should leave Pete to him. That he'd take care of him."

"And his manner. He got to his feet and brandished that goldknobbed cane he always carries, didn't he?"

"Yes," I replied.

"I have asked you several times to aid us in the performance of our duty." The chief's smooth, low voice was vaguely threatening as he added: "And Mrs. Knowlton was extremely fond of her nephew, wasn't she?"

"I think so." What I had seen behind the Everard hedge on Sunday could not be explained in any other way.

"You only—think, Miss Glenn?"

The insistence, the steady pressure, was too much for me. "Mrs. Knowlton adored Pete and the Commodore despised him."

Our Government Asks YOU to Conserve Electricity

... and here is how you can help

ELECTRICITY's not rationed, you say?
You're right.

• But when you save electricity, you help save the manpower, coal, transportation and materials by which electricity is made. You help shorten the war!

• That's why our Government has asked seven major industries—coal, petroleum, transportation, gas, electricity, communications and water—to cooperate for wartime conservation. And that's why you are asked to conserve electricity whenever you can.

• No one expects you to gamble good eyesight against bad light, or lock up your appliances, or silence your radio. Use electricity for essential purposes. But don't waste it—that's the point.

• Here's how you can cooperate in this voluntary conservation program:

IN YOUR HOME

Turn off lights and electrical conveniences when not needed.

• Eliminate waste in the use of your refrigerator, radio, range and other electrical appliances.

IN YOUR BUSINESS

Eliminate all types of electrical indoor and outdoor advertising, decorative and ornamental lighting in the daytime. In general, nighttime burning should be reduced as far as practicable and limited to two hours between dusk and 10 o'clock.

Signs necessary for the direction or identification of public restaurants, lodging establishments, transportation terminals, etc., may be burned at night, but only while the establishment is open for business.

IN INDUSTRIAL PLANTS

Numerous economies are possible in the use of electricity without adversely affecting production. What to do will vary in individual cases.

EXCEPTIONS

No curtailment is asked in necessary military, aviation and police lighting, lighting essential to public health and safety, plant protection, transportation and production purposes.

As outdoor recreational activities are considered essential for wartime morale, the use of electricity for these purposes is not discouraged, but savings that can be made should be put into effect.
